

Volunteers needed for LANL Student Symposium August 7-8

August 1, 2012

Judges are needed at this year's student symposium, "Championing Scientific Careers," which will be held August 7-8 at University of New Mexico-Los Alamos. Help is required for poster evaluation on August 7 and for the technical talks on August 8. Judges are needed in the areas of engineering, bioscience, computing, chemistry, earth and space science, mathematics, physics, health and safety, materials science, as well as for non-technical projects.

Since the event sometimes involves people who have to change their plans and can't help at the last minute, judges are needed right up to the day of the activities.

If you would like to help further a student's potential science career through the Symposium, please contact Barbara Tenorio-Grimes with the Lab's Education and Postdoc Office at (505) 665-5121 or at bgrimes@lanl.gov.
